Thanks, Guys.

We'd like to thank all those Total Home
Automation companies for all our new clients.

Hundreds of times each year, Crescendo is called in to redo what other companies have done. No home automation firm has a more experienced in-house team of manufacturer-certified programmers and installers and 24/7 service technicians – or more exclusive high-end brands – than we do. The difference is in the details: It's a difference you'll see, hear . . . and feel.

THE SECRET IS OUT.

For many years Tuxedo Park has been a secret Alpine oasis of historic homes surrounding three lakes in the foothills of the Ramapo Mountains only 30 minutes from the George Washington Bridge, but I could never keep a secret—so I am excited to share with you some of our plans and properties that have just come on the market in Tuxedo Park.

Over the last few months, we formed the Tuxedo Hudson Company and Tuxedo Hudson Realty to take advantage of this under-the-radar location that is ripe for discovery and restoration.

Uniquely situated in a valley that separates two state parks of nearly 70,000 acres of trails and lakes in every direction that was once, and will soon again be, the proud Gateway to the Hudson Valley.

Tuxedo Hudson Company has to date purchased 20 historic commercial buildings along the Tuxedo - Sloatsburg corridor that will be restored and re-envisioned as a destination for great food with a focus on the bounty of the Hudson Valley. The centerpiece of the project will be the once famous market in Tuxedo that was owned and operated by the same family for nearly 100 years until the 1990s. The market will reopen in 2017 with the best of everything available from the Hudson Valley and will feature a wood burning grill and a weekend farmers market to supplement the daily offerings from local farms.

As excited as we are about the market and restaurants we are opening in Tuxedo, we might be even more excited about the new boutique hotel we are creating out of a complex of nine Victorian houses in the center of Sloatsburg. This small hotel will be geared toward people who love to cycle, and will have easy access directly into Harriman State Park with a train station just a few doors away.

Bring your bike or ride your bike right up the 9W and through the park and stay the night. The hotel has yet to be named but we see it as our version of the Standard Hotel with a pool and poolside dining.

As the founder of 1stdibs, antiques and design will always be part of my life, so we are thrilled to have been able to acquire the long abandoned Stewart Farm and its neighboring properties to create our own Antiques and Design District on nearly 12 acres of rolling grass with old farm houses and stone barns. On the farm will be room for 30 dealers, exhibition space and a horse rescue.

Tuxedo Hudson Realty was launched this March to take advantage of exciting real estate opportunities in the area. There are exceptional properties that were designed by the great architects of the day that can be purchased for a fraction of their replacement cost, in fact, within this book we are offering houses designed by Delano & Aldrich, Walker & Gillette, and Bruce Price.

$1,400,000 6000 sq ft contemporary on 3 Tuxedo Lake waterfront acres with stone steps down to the water and floating dock.

$1,975,000 Designed by Bruce Price, this exquisite "cottage" best exemplifies the community's unique history.

$5,400,000 Walker & Gillette designed mountain top estate on 16 PZZ with breathtaking view of Tuxedo Lake.

1960s Pelham & Aldrich Mountain Top Estate with Spectacular Terraces and Lawns.

TUXEDO PARK THE ULTIMATE CAMP

The real estate market in Tuxedo is diverse, from great estates to sweet gardener's cottages and carriage houses—there is something for anyone who loves nature, privacy and security. Tuxedo Park is the only gated incorporated village in the state of New York—a world away and only a short drive to Manhattan. There is no place like it.

Tuxedo Hudson Realty is servicing the entire lower Hudson Valley.

For more information on our properties please visit our websites: TuxedoHudsonRealty.com; TuxedoHudsonCompany.com; or feel free to call us anytime at 845 915 4567.

Finally, a Regional Medical Center for the entire East End

The ingredients for a higher order of healthcare

Northwell Health is New York's largest health care system. Peconic Bay Medical Center is the East End's largest hospital.

Our new partnership is bringing a higher order of health care service and capability to our region.

The East End's Most Critical Issue: Lack of access to life-saving care

While minutes often mean the difference between life and death, East Enders have had to travel farther for emergency cardiac and trauma care than any other residents of the Tri-State Area. That kind of trade-off for our quality of life is no longer acceptable.

Ground-Breaking News: The East End's Most Advanced Heart & Trauma Centers

—Interventional Cardiology and More: Our plans for the region's most advanced heart center are filed and awaiting NYS approval.

—The East End's Premier Trauma Center: Our plans have been approved by NYS. Training and pre-construction are already underway.

...and we're just getting started

BEAUTIFUL BUCKS COUNTY, PA

PAXSON RIDGE

One of a kind 5 bedroom home on Paxson Road in Solebury sits on a 7 acre plus lot. The home is the 2003 Winner of the Pinnacle Award for custom homes over $2 million. Features many architectural details including arched doorways, a two story coffered ceiling, stone walls, wainscoting in the dining room and a series of covered porches. Decks and balconies take advantage of the spectacular views. $2,795,000

Contact Margo Busund at 215.801.2977

PHEASANT VALLEY RUN

A prestigious property on 89 plus acres shed its genesis in an 1840s stone farmhouse that has been perfectly restored into a 3 bedroom, 1 1/2 bath guest house. The original barn was converted into a dramatic space that can lend itself to both a historical or a contemporary interior. The Great Room has soaring ceilings with large original timbers, plank flooring, stone fireplace and a two-story Palladium window. The expansive room continues into a recently renovated open kitchen. $2,395,000

TURTLE HILL

The main "Great Room" is anchored by a large woodburning fireplace and walls of French doors that open to a sizeable Bluestone terrace that can be a gathering place for cocktails or al fresco dining. Whether you are sitting in the Great Room or on the terrace, you are enveloped by layer after layer of mature and artfully designed landscaping. There is a pool and a pool house that contains a working kitchen, full bath, and a laundry room. All on 18 plus Tinicum acres with stocked pond. $2,495,000

THE PENTHOUSE AT WATERVIEW

This penthouse has 7,420 square feet of Delaware River views. You enter into your own private foyer. The glass tile floor, wall coverings and lighting set the mood for the extraordinary experience that awaits you. You are greeted by African hardwood flooring and a wall of French doors that flow to a large entertainment terrace overlooking the River. The kitchen is truly state-of-the-art. Magnificent home theater and 4 en-suite bedrooms. $2,995,000

PAXSON MANOR

Spacious home is set on 12+ acres on Paxson Road. To the right of the foyer is a magnificent Great Room with a massive stone fireplace, walls of glass and is completely open to the State-of-the-Art kitchen. Includes paneled library, 4 bedrooms and 5.2 baths. The master suite offers a sumptuous master bath retreat, fireplace and plenty of light. Converted Lower level features home theater, full bath and solarium room. There is a pool, spa and pool house. $2,195,000

VALLEY RUN

One of the finest properties ever offered in Bucks County. The property went under 2 years of renovation to create this magnificent metamorphosis. Through the entrance gates, transverse thick green lawns, waterfalls, ponds and museum quality sculpture, you arrive to Valley Run's parking square. The barn houses a guest apartment that features the best amenities. The second guest house has two bedrooms on its two levels. A new heated pool, with new pool house, look at this 24+ prime acreage and stream. $4,995,000

"This lovely, softer revival of beat poetry looks back on the hedonism of summers in the Hamptons."

Paige Van De Winkle - Foreword Clarion Review

"A masterful use of words and styles makes The East Deck Motel and Selected Poetry an ideal gift for any occasion, as well as a wonderful companion read for a weekend outing to the beach. A collection of poetry which can be enjoyed by all ages and can be read multiple times. I recommend this book to everyone..."

Hillary Clinton

Presidential hopeful Hillary Clinton hit the Hamptons for fundraising this week. On Sunday she attended a Sag Harbor garden party hosted by Barbaralee Diamonstein-Spielvogel, New York State Council on the Arts chairwoman, as well as a Southampton dinner hosted by Marcia Riklis. On Monday she appeared at events hosted by Karen and Charles Phillips in East Hampton and Jeff and Randi Levine in Quogue. Clinton's big event took place Tuesday night, with a party hosted by North Haven's Jimmy Buffett and East Hampton's Jon Bon Jovi.

McLain Ward sped to the top in the $30,000 Boar's Head Open Jumper Challenge on opening day at the Hampton Classic Horse Show. The win came during the four-time Olympic veteran's first competition since leading the U.S. team to a silver medal at the Rio Olympic Games. Ward's 2004 gold medal Olympic teammate Peter Wylde was second and Shane Sweetnam of Ireland was third. See related photos on page 75.

VH1 held its third annual Save the Music gala at a private Hamptons residence last Saturday. DJ Cassidy and pop group Fifth Harmony headlined the party, which is one of Save the Music's biggest yearly events. Proceeds support the foundation's mission to bring music programs back into American public schools.

The 5th Annual Dan's Papers Literary Prize for Nonfiction Awards Ceremony at Guild Hall will be held Thursday, September 1—so we cannot reveal this year's winners, but you can read last year's winning story by Colette Sewall on page 93. This ceremony will feature keynote addresses by Pulitzer Prize-winning writers Carl Bernstein and Robert Caro, Emmy Award winner Dick Cavett reading the winning pieces, and a performance by Perlman Music Program alumni. Admission is free. Reserved seating for book signing and VIP Authors Dinner ticket holders only. Immediately following the ceremony, there will be a cocktail reception in Guild Hall's Garden.

DOWN IN THE TUBE

Huma Abedin and Anthony Weiner were seen on the Hamptons Subway on Friday sitting next to each other without speaking and with their hands folded in their laps. They did this from Montauk to Westhampton Beach where Weiner finally got off. Donald Trump and Vladimir Putin were seen on Sunday afternoon at 3 p.m. on a subway bound from Sag Harbor to Bridgehampton. They were staring at a computer screen that Putin was holding. It's a good thing we now have wireless on our system.

NEWSSTANDS NOW ONLINE

The newsstands that are on the platforms at Montauk, East Hampton, Sag Harbor, Southampton and Westhampton Beach are now all digitized. The latest issues of all the usual magazines are at these newsstands, but they are just the covers. Tap a cover and the issue is wirelessly transferred to your smartphone. The cost is a bit more than buying the actual magazine but it's worth it because this is just so cool.

MONEY ON THE TRACKS

Along the Hamptons Subway system tracks, our employees are finding hundred dollar bills strewn everywhere. Last week Clinton and Trump were here fundraising and we think the bills are just the excess of the accumulated loot that was taken off in canvas bags. There has also been a dip in the local economy here on the East End, a further indication of the money taken out last week.

SUBWAY CARS WITHOUT DOORS

You may have heard that some of the big subway lines around the country are planning to soon have subway cars that attach in a way that doesn't require doors separating them. Passengers can walk between one car and the next unobstructed and unexposed. When these cars are here, expected in 2019, their capacity will increase by 30% more passengers per car. Hamptons Subway has jumped the gun on this and now leads the way. Last week, riders found that all the doors separating the cars were removed, enabling passengers to walk through all the cars from first car to last, just remembering to hold on to the newly installed metal grips as they make their way through the open space in between the cars. Most passengers said they liked this new arrangement and could deal with the balancing necessary to get across the subway car attachments by being very careful and hanging onto the metal grips. A few passengers objected to this, but most are gone now because they either fled the system or fell between the cars and perished. We've had only nine fatalities since we've made the change, three less than we expected.

EXTRA PUSHERS FOR LABOR DAY

Our crew of 32 college students working as "pushers" on the platforms in the summertime to get everybody packed aboard all the trains, are being joined for Labor Day weekend by pushers from the Tokyo Subway System who, this time of year, are already laid off by that system and are available to work in the Hamptons for the weekend. You will find them a little more polite than their American counterparts, but on the other hand few speak English if they shove you too hard and you want to complain.

COMMISSIONER ASPINALL'S MESSAGE

As we do every Labor Day weekend, my wife and I go elsewhere while the work unfolds on Hamptons Subway that weekend. There are too many complaints and not enough time to fix them and then it's all over anyway. We will be in Aix en Provence. 🇫🇷

PROBLEM OF PHONELESSNESS

An officer with the Hamptons Police reported the surveillance of a Sag Harbor man who exhibited suspicious behavior on Friday. According to the officer, the man was walking by himself on Hampton Street in the direction of the village, proceeded on Washington Street and from there to Main Street. Once on Main Street, the man continued to walk down Main Street in the direction of the Long Wharf. The mysterious man didn't appear to be in communication with anyone, nor was he observed to make an effort to communicate with anyone. "At no time during this extended, five-minute period that our officer was observing him did the man pull a phone out of his pocket to look at it," says Hamptons Police spokesman Larry Hirsch. "He was not wearing a blue-tooth device on his head and talking into it. In fact, he didn't seem to even have a phone on him." The man made no attempt to disguise the fact that he was without a means of telecommunication, but his fellow pedestrians, who were either talking on a phone or absorbed in looking at their phones, failed to notice the sinister phoneless man. Unfortunately, the Hamptons Police officer who was following the man stopped to take a call and lost track of the suspect. "Because we lost him, at this point we have more questions about this guy than answers," says spokesman Hirsch. The Hamptons Police are asking the public to report to them if they encounter any evidence of phonelessness in their neighborhoods.

MUSIC RULES REMINDER

As word has spread regarding a rumored Jimmy Buffett musical, the Hamptons Music Council has issued a clarification regarding the so-called Buffett rule. The Buffett rule states that cover bands playing in the Hamptons are forbidden from playing songs by Jimmy Buffett unless Jimmy Buffett himself is onstage and playing with the band. For the safety of the public, the Hamptons Police are authorized to step in and shut down any venue where the Buffett rule is violated. Foreseeing that theater companies might use the mounting of a production of a Jimmy Buffett musical as a way to skirt the Buffett rule, the Hamptons Music Council released the following statement: "While in the past the Buffett rule has been understood as pertaining to cover bands playing in nightclubs and bars, theater companies should be aware that the Buffett rule shall apply in all Hamptons venues. Any theater company that wishes to stage a Jimmy Buffett musical in the Hamptons shall be required to provide Jimmy Buffett himself for any and all performances. There will be no exceptions to this valuable public safety measure." 🐘

Emergency Landing of the A380 in East Hampton

BY DAN RATTINER

Last spring, East Hampton town announced strict new aircraft noise control ordinances at the airport. Aircraft would be ticketed if they landed or took off after curfew. Aircraft emitting high-decibel noise would be subject to further restrictions, even banishment from the airport for repeat offenses. The aircraft companies tried to prevent these new ordinances from going into effect, but failed. In spite of this, people living near the airport have continued pressing for even stricter ordinances. One new group has been formed hoping to shut the airport. Another group, Dark Skies, met with the Town of Southampton last month to show off new software that will allow local residents to see silhouettes of aircraft on their screens and, by clicking on them, the names and flight information of them. Until now, residents have had to call a particular phone number to register a complaint. Or they have to fill out a multi-page form. Noisy aircraft are long gone before anything is done. The Town is thinking about installing the software.

Nothing, however, compares to what happened this past Wednesday night at East Hampton Airport. At 11:15 p.m., the noise from the largest commercial aircraft ever produced knocked people out of their beds and shook the walls and windows in Wainscott and Sagaponack as it came into East Hampton from the northwest for an emergency landing. It was so loud that no one thought it was an aircraft. They thought it must be an earthquake. And so nobody filed a complaint.

The aircraft that landed was an Air Belgium Airbus A-380, a double-decker affair as wide as a football field and weighing more than a million pounds. Its capacity is 800 passengers, but fortunately on this particular flight only 675 were on board. It had taken off from JFK bound for Brussels, developed electrical problems and was forced to come down at the nearest airport, which was East Hampton.

The three men in the airport tower were just putting things away for the night when the silhouette of this plane came into view. It had no lights.

"The last plane in was a Cessna 32, just before the curfew," said Assistant Airport Manager Red Barber. "We were fortunate it was not still on the runway when this big baby arrived. And we were fortunate not to have turned the runway lights off yet."

East Hampton's runway is only 4,255 feet long, and the pilot made it in by jamming the reverse thrusters to full power as he hit the runway. The plane struggled and bounced along and came to a halt just before the fence and the adjacent Daniel's Hole Road, which, fortunately, had no traffic at that hour.

"We just stood there in the tower with our mouths open," Barber said.

Soon, the pilot of the craft climbed down from the cockpit and trotted over to the control tower to check in.

"He spoke English with a really heavy accent," Barber said. "French, I think. I could barely understand him. The name was O'Leary. Or O'Malley. I don't think I got it right."

So the pilot left and soon returned with a co-pilot who had less of an accent and could be better understood. He said that the electric power had gone out on the communications system, which was why they couldn't announce their approach. It also compromised the navigation system.

"They landed by the seat of their pants, the co-pilot told me," Barber said. "Everything else was working fine. The brakes, the engines. It was just the navigation and phones."

"He also said this was something they should have been able to fix onboard. Warning lights had come on over Hicksville, indicating that a wire inside the back of the dashboard had come loose. They'd just have to push it back in. But to do that, they'd have to unscrew the dashboard cover and that meant finding the three-millimeter diameter Phillips head screwdriver in their toolbox. But it was not in the toolbox."

Barber got the airport toolbox and gave the co-pilot what he needed. The co-pilot thanked him, said "this should take us about 45 minutes," and ran off. (Cont'd on next page)

Twenty minutes later, two stewards from first class came up to the tower with flutes of champagne and silver platters of caviar and baguettes. Then another steward arrived to return the special screwdriver. There was a note. MERCI, it said. Ten minutes later, another steward arrived with four passengers from the plane who said they weren't continuing on and wanted to get back to New York.

"We called Hampton Jitney and they arranged a ride. The co-pilot also told us they needed 2,000 gallons of our very highest-test gas. We have such stuff. It's rarely used because it's so flammable, but it can provide huge additional power to an aircraft engine for a short period of time. Apparently, they'd need tremendous power to get off. Coming down was one thing on a short runway. Going up another. I told them to take what they needed."

The pilot put the aircraft through a full pre-flight check of all systems. It went on for another hour.

"Suddenly, the plane's lights came on and it appeared on our radar screens front and center.

The co-pilot also radioed a request to have our two traffic controllers drive their personal cars down to the far end of the runway, where there is 200 yards of lawn before a woods, drive across the lawn, go to the sides, turn around and shine their headlights back toward the tower. In the plane, they'd be able to gauge how far the woods were as they approached."

The traffic controllers went off. And then, at 3 a.m., the pilot crept the huge aircraft out to the runway's end at Daniel's Hole Road, turned to face the woods 5,000 feet down at the other end, and turned the engines up to full throttle.

"Permission to take off," the co-pilot requested.

"Flight 466," I said," Barber told me, "you are cleared to go. Godspeed."

"I don't know what it was like for my two guys out at the far end," Barber said, "but as he shifted into first, the enormous engines sent streams of fire out the back and made such a racket the entire control tower shook, sending me sprawling. Back at the window, I watched flight 466 start to move. The tires spun and peeled rubber as they strained to push the big plane along. White smoke billowed off the tarmac and this plane—would our runway survive this?—began to gather speed. It seemed an eternity. I held my breath as it reached the end of the runway to cross the grass, but then the nose came up, and like an enormous dinosaur it was off. Sparks flew, but it just cleared the trees."

The thunderous noise of the plane roaring over Wainscott and Sagaponack sent shivers through the houses again. Windows broke and dishes and glasses fell off shelves. Again, the residents thought it was the earthquake. An aftershock even stronger than the original. Again, nobody called in a complaint.

The next day, this reporter returned to the airport to meet with Barber. He told me he wouldn't blame me if I didn't believe his story. But then he showed me the silver tray and the empty flutes, and he took me out to the grass and the woods at the far end. The tops of the some of the trees had their tops sheared off. The branches and limbs lay all around. Go and see for yourself. It had been THAT close. 🐸

THE WILD, WILD EAST END

Midnight in Montauk

A Lewis & Clark Expedition to the Wilds of Montauk's Nightlife

BY DAN RATTINER

For the previous two summers, the scene in Montauk had spun out of control. Huge numbers of young people filled the town and happily and wildly behaved badly, sometimes right in the center of town, blocking traffic. This newspaper had dubbed these folks the Wet T-Shirt Crowd. And we suggested—in fact, everybody suggested—that new laws be put into the books in the Town of East Hampton, of which Montauk is part, and enforcement be doubled and re-doubled with, for example, a police officer on every street corner.

This summer, with new ordinances in place about loud music and live bands and some careful monitoring of other existing laws, the bad experience, reportedly, has been largely sent into remission. If true, this would be a good thing. Nobody wants to have the town wrecked. In the end, in those types of summer places, the denizens who cause trouble find a new hot spot to ruin and move on.

Nevertheless, as a former resident of Montauk, in the days when the town was a fishing village and family resort motel town with some nightspots for us teenagers—the Surf and Sand, the Blue Marlin and the Manor about covered it—I asked my friend Clark (I being Lewis) to accompany me for an expedition into my former haunt on a Saturday night to see what would be shaking.

Young people would be out on a Saturday night at midnight, I presumed. I was one of those once, and from this vantage point it's a bit depressing to think I ain't out on that job anymore—but nevertheless, a job is a job, and it's our job, the Lewis and Clark Job, to see what is going on and report back.

We came down the Montauk Highway through Amagansett and passed the former Cyril's Fish House, now shut up tight after being pounced upon by the local authorities for bad behavior, so let that be a lesson to you and other matters—and we entered the wilds of downtown Montauk.

From inside a Tahoe, we drove around, sometimes as slowly as five miles an hour. I wanted to take notes.

There were a hundred or more young people within the proper boundaries of the Sloppy Tuna, all talking at once, all drinking, all setting things up for later, whatever that might be, but there was no loud music, and nobody wandering out on the street.

The Shagwong was shaking with about 50 young people. The dinner hour was over and the tables had been pushed aside, but again, there was nothing loud going on. A band setup remained. Apparently the Great Bazooba Kings, or whatever the musicians call themselves, had observed the 9 p.m. no loud music curfew.

We went out to the Crow's Nest, and once again there was quite a crowd. This place is pretty much in the middle of nowhere and could have loud music without bothering anyone really, but no, it was all quiet there on the eastern front.

quiet. At midnight, Arbor had nobody on what appeared to be a dance floor, and we went to Duryea's Lobster Deck and they were just closing up for the night. The cleaning people were there. And it looked pretty chic, I must tell you.

It's like when Lewis and Clark went through the Northwest, they went through Idaho but didn't get to Colorado.

We went over to the Montaukett, and it's the same old fisherman's bar, although a younger generation of family members now runs the place.

Ruschmeyer's was busy with people, but the loud noises were people chatting and not some big band anywhere. The same was true at Solé East down the way.

We didn't get out to Navy Beach—it's like in the regular Lewis and Clark expedition through the Northwest, they went through Idaho but didn't get to Colorado.

Back toward town, we glided past the Surf Lodge, the place that started this influx of Yuppie Plus people, and there were taxicabs out front and people talking inside and out and all in orderly fashion. We did notice a plethora of taxicabs everywhere. If these kids were drinking, they were doing it responsibly and being driven around.

We went past Trail's End, and the tables had been moved aside with the end of the dinner hour, but here at midnight there was little going on inside.

We went to the old Ronjo Motel with the big 10-foot tall bronze tiki figure by the entrance, but in its new trappings as the Montauk Beach House it was all peaceful and quiet there at midnight, and it made me wonder if they'd gone out of the nightclub business.

We drove up and down Main Street and there were people around, mostly young, well behaved, not loud or drunk or anything, and there was a considerable presence of police around.

The only real hotspot with a band operating at that hour was the Memory Motel, which has a legal entertainment license for late-night music—the only one in town, according to the Montauk Chamber of Commerce. In the parking lot, music blared over loudspeakers and a crowd of about 150 people waited to get in the door, and yes, a few people seemed to overflow onto the sidewalk and into the street, but the police were there and they were keeping it orderly and it was not out of control.

Clark and I stopped at John's Drive-In for some of their famous ice cream, and some people from the Memory did wander over but again they were orderly.

And that was our tour, other than a brief look passing Gurney's on the way home, a fine and very grand resort that is now also a hotspot. No problem there.

Some of the current generation of kids in Montauk are now sporting caps that read LET'S MAKE MONTAUK GREAT AGAIN

Note that I have not mentioned some of the fine upscale restaurants in that town now and the chic shops here and there, but unless midnight (through to 1 a.m.—it was a one-hour tour) is just too early for trouble, I have to report that it was my experience that on a Saturday night at midnight in high summer in Montauk, that town seemed downright tame, and very well-sprinkled with a wide variety of activities that seemed just fine to me.

The police say arrests are down, things are orderly, and it appears that there is a new spirit in this community that seems to have blossomed forth from so much of what it has, from its fine golf course to its nightspots to its surfing, ocean swimming, hang-gliding, romance, horseback riding, fishing, clamming and sightseeing, and you know—it was not that much different than when I was a lad out there.

As if to put an exclamation point on this, I did find out the next day that some of the current generation of kids in Montauk are now sporting red baseball caps that read LET'S MAKE MONTAUK GREAT AGAIN, and the explanation is that the hoopla is now muted and it just ain't what it used to be.

Fair enough. Montauk is for Montaukers. And those that favor the Jersey Shore or the Cape, well, you have our permission to go there.

Viva Montauk! It passed inspection. 🐢

A Chronology of Beethoven's Life and Why the Fifth Is His Best

BY DAN RATTINER

BEETHOVEN'S FIRST: You don't hear much about Beethoven's First. The reason is that it was not much good. On the other hand, it was remarkable he had even done one. He was only five years old at the time. His teacher, who had been instructing him on the piano since he was three, said this was the best piece of writing by a child that age in the entire city of Vienna. It was also remarkable because he had knocked it out in such a short period of time. He'd written the entire thing in just a day and a half. His parents, who were well-to-do, gave performances of Beethoven's First in their home for their friends, who applauded and cheered the young lad and said it was absolutely brilliant. But after Beethoven was put to bed (at 8:30 p.m.), they all did say that it was brilliant, of course, within the context of his being five years old.

SYMPHONY NUMBER TWO: This symphony was written when he was nine. He worked on it for weeks, going back over it again and again, each time changing it so that the time he wrote it in the fall was just completely different than what he had written in the spring. Finally, he showed it to his mother. She praised the work, said it was brilliant, but there didn't seem to be the sort of enthusiasm in her voice that there had been before. Beethoven threw the final draft in the fire. Earlier drafts exist, but they are rarely played.

THE THIRD SYMPHONY (Eroica): At 16, Beethoven fell in love with a beautiful young girl named Adriana, who was a year older and a member of high society, which Beethoven was not. She did like him a lot, but not enough to overcome the objections of her parents, who were members of the Viennese royal family and frequently welcome at court. When she told Beethoven she had to break up with him, she cried, and then ran off. Beethoven did not chase her. But instead, working 72 hours without sleep, completed the highly passionate ode to love that became Eroica, Beethoven's Third. It was widely praised, and rightly so. Moving and alternately sad and proud, it brought listeners to tears. It still does. This was the work of a fine young composer indeed.

THE FOURTH SYMPHONY: This is also rarely played. Beethoven wrote it in the style of the composer Max Von Heering, widely regarded back then but little noted after his death. Beethoven was 22 years old at the time and was apprenticing to the great master. Though not crazy about the work himself, Beethoven showed it to Von Heering, who told Beethoven great things could come of him in a few years. He encouraged Beethoven to continue, said Beethoven could do better, and urged Beethoven not to release it. Indeed, Beethoven hid the manuscript in a closet, and only recently has it been discovered. It has not been played yet. As for Von Heering, he is most praised today for offering (Cont'd on next page)

Beethoven encouragement and urging him to continue.

THE FIFTH SYMPHONY: This is Beethoven's masterwork. Beethoven had completed his apprenticeship with Von Heering and, with help from family and friends, had opened his own composing studio in Vienna. He was 28. Surrounded by and encouraged by these people, Beethoven mostly suffered from writer's block during the day, but then worked through the nights with unrelenting passion and focus. After six months it was done. Beethoven's Fifth. Perhaps the single greatest work of music ever created on this planet. A triumph. Beethoven toured. He became world famous.

THE SIXTH SYMPHONY: After the tours were over and the excitement died down, Beethoven returned to his studio to write the Sixth Symphony in the same way he had written the Fifth. He caroused all day with hangers on, then worked all night, now aided by some drugs to keep him alert and excited. He lost a lot of weight. But when it was done he considered it a triumph. Critics disagreed. They noted that the work of most famous composers slips down a notch after their masterwork.

THE SEVENTH SYMPHONY: Beethoven continued to work in the same fashion as he had before. But now he wasn't so sure of himself and kept writing Number Seven and throwing it in the fire and writing it again and throwing it in the fire. Eventually, he declared he could only go on if he just skipped Number Seven and went on to Number Eight. He was 41 at this time. Some people thought he should consider rehab, and told him so. Number Seven remains skipped over.

Beethoven mostly suffered from writer's block during the day, but then worked through the nights with unrelenting passion and focus...

THE EIGHTH SYMPHONY: Beethoven took a long vacation after the aborted Seventh. He traveled the world. Rome. Egypt. Palestine. Florence. Paris. Madrid. This was in the 18th century, and that was the western world as they knew it at the time—the rest were colonies. He was praised wherever he went, and people asked him for his autograph all the time, which he would sign "Best of Luck from Beethoven, who Took the Fifth." It was a sort of in-joke, Beethoven said, but most people just walked away puzzled. Eventually, he wrote the Eighth, mostly on the back of bar napkins in nightspots he was frequenting at that time—now in his mid-50s, he was a big hit with the women and world famous—but he knew it wasn't much good. He put it out there anyway and it sort of flopped, but most critics were kind to him and would start out by saying that on certain occasions the old punch was still there and it sent a thrill through them, but then they sort of dozed off. They couldn't wait for him to do his next one.

THE NINTH SYMPHONY: In his mid-60s, when Beethoven tackled this symphony, he discovered to his dismay that he was becoming deaf. He could hear a few things if you shouted, though. Inside, he still had this dramatic, passionate, impatient and ethereal theme he could hum, and he was determined to get it out. He began writing, and out it was coming, but when he got about three-quarters the way through to where the Andante comes in, he couldn't hear it at all. His students pitched in—Beethoven was broke by this time—and acquired the services of the massive Hoffenfeffer Berlin and Hamburg Cathedral Choir to come to his studio and sing and shout along with the notes. This was so effective that Beethoven could clearly hear it, and, overjoyed, he kept them on right through the Presto and then to the Grand Finale, which rose to the joyful and triumphant ending that everyone knows and enjoys today.

As for Beethoven, he said enough was enough. And though he couldn't hear at all at this point, his students announced to the world that Beethoven was retiring, which he did. He spent his last years reading newspapers and magazines in a modest home in Speyer Aub der Rhine.

Meanwhile, the Hoffenfeffer Berlin and Hamburg Cathedral Choir became famous on its own and frequently was urged to sing the Ninth, which it did. This choir became quite famous for a time. Beethoven, though, never knew. 🐻

Singer/Songwriter Suzanne Vega Performs at Guild Hall

BY CHRISTIE LEIGH BABIRAD

On September 3, Suzanne Vega brings her distinctive songs of city life and ordinary people to Guild Hall in East Hampton. The artist, known as one of the leading figures of the '80s folk revival, continues to reinvent the folk genre with an upcoming album due out in October titled Lover, Beloved: Songs from an Evening with Carson McCullers. Vega took some time to speak with us about her songwriting inspiration, her upcoming album and the praise she received from the late Prince.

What is it about the folk genre that you enjoy and find unique?

Modern folksinger Suzanne Vega

The acoustic guitar—I love the sound. The acoustic guitar is relatively cheap, which was important to me because I grew up in New York City, where you don't have garages where you can go and rehearse, so having this guitar was a wonderful way of expressing myself as a teenager. I could just go into my room and write songs all by myself, and then go out and sing them. I think that's sort of its great strength—you can do it as one person. I think for that reason folk music will always be alive.

Where does the inspiration for your songs come from?

I'm inspired mostly just by people's faces in the city, walking around and thinking about people in their daily life and what they're experiencing. It's a combination of things I see, things I already know and then a fantasy component.

What are some of your favorite songs to perform?

I love "Caramel," which to me is a very sensual song. "Luka" is a song that has a lot of meaning for a lot of people, and it still connects with audiences, and "Tom's Diner" has become this great celebration. It brings back memories of rave parties in the '90s, which is a very happy memory for a lot of people, so everyone kind of joins in on that, which I love.

Lover, Beloved: Songs from an Evening with Carson McCullers* comes out on October 14. What can you tell us about the album?

This is a collection of songs about the life and work of Carson McCullers—the great southern author. She was such an unusual character, who was so far ahead of her time that she was both celebrated and ostracized in her day. I think she wrote in a very tough and compassionate way. These songs are to illuminate her world.

You once received a letter from Prince reading, "Dear Suzanne, 'Luka' is the most compelling piece of music I've heard in a long time." What has this letter meant to you?

This letter was a high point of my career in some ways, not just his letter, but his love of that song. I'd never actually met him, but I know that when I performed on the Grammys he jumped to his feet at the end of my performance and cheered louder than anyone. It was such a shock when he died because he was so beautiful, and just always really rocked, like you never felt the passing of time with him.

You will be performing at Guild Hall on September 3—What do you most enjoy about Long Island's East End?

The ocean. I have quite a few water songs, and one of them, "Widow's Walk" was inspired by a couple of summers in Sag Harbor. Also seeing the architectural detail on some of the old houses there. And I love Dan's Papers. Whenever I'm on the Jitney heading out there, that's what I'm reading. 📖

Suzanne Vega performs at Guild Hall, 158 Main Street in East Hampton on Saturday, September 3 at 8 p.m. For more information and to purchase tickets, visit guildhall.org or call 631-324-0806.

Everything You Want to Know About Dan's Best of the Best

BY VALERIE SAN FILIPPO

You've seen the blue emblem stamped across the East End. Maybe you've even voted using our new Dan's Papers app. But you've still got some questions about Dan's Best of the Best, the ultimate guide of where to stay and where to play in the Hamptons, on the North Fork and beyond. Lucky for you, we've got the answers right here.

How does a business win Dan's Best of the Best?

Just like this great nation of ours, Dan's Papers believes in the power of democracy. Any business can win Platinum, Gold, Silver or Bronze in their category based on how many votes they receive. Votes can be cast by anyone who registers through the Dan's Papers app, or at DansBOTB.com.

How do I vote?

Log on to DansBOTB.com or to our new Dan's Papers app. You'll be asked to create a username. From there you can vote once per category per day. So, if you really love a business, a restaurant or a local personality, show them some love! Cast a vote every day and their rankings rise.

My business/service isn't listed in its category. What should I do?

Lucky for you, Dan's Best of the Best offers an easy way to get a business listed. While perusing the proper category, select "write-in voting" (located at the top of the list on our website and at the bottom of the screen on the app). Enter the name and address of the business. The entry will not appear immediately, but don't worry—our team is working diligently to ensure all entries are accurate and without duplication. The new listing will appear within two business days. The time frame for write-in voting is limited, and will end on September 15 at 11:59 p.m.

When does BOTB voting end?

Voting ends at 11:59 p.m. on October 17. Write-in voting ends on September 15 at 11:59 p.m.

What's with the app you keep mentioning?

The Dan's Papers app is Dan's Papers' latest innovation, available on any mobile Apple or Android device. The app is a hybrid of the best digital content on DansPapers.com, our full calendar of events, and full access to everything related to Dan's Best of the Best. You can read the latest Dan's Papers stories, catch up on the East End celebrity news in South O' the Highway, find the local weather and surf reports, and cast votes and read reviews of past winners of Dan's Best of the Best. It's the best of the East End right in your hand!

Why can't I choose my own password?

Don't worry, you won't be stuck with a pre-selected password forever. Our random password generator is used for temporary login purposes. Once you log in with that password, you can edit your password by selecting "My Account" and then clicking on the "change password" tab.

I've won Dan's BOTB! What do I get?

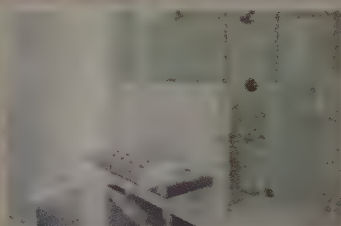

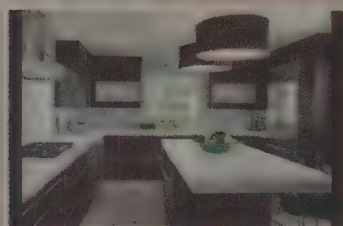

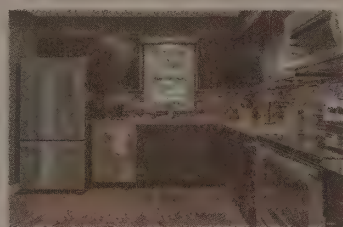

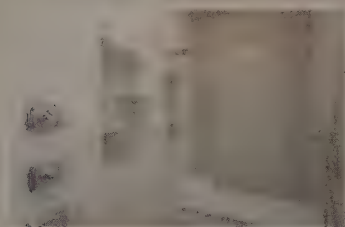

Honor, glory and bragging rights! And that coveted framed Dan's Best of the Best certificate, of course. You'll be invited to our annual Dan's BOTB award ceremony at Suffolk Theater in Riverhead on November 11. Your business will be invited to place the Dan's BOTB emblem on your website, signage and paper ephemera. You'll be listed on the Dan's BOTB site and app as the official winner for your category. Dan's Best of the Best List is the ultimate directory for East Enders, and with our app's added map feature, it's easier than ever for people to find all the businesses near them. If you win your category, it's even easier—your business is the first one users will see, right there at the top of the list!

Visit DansBOTB.com to cast your vote and to find the best businesses on the East End, and make sure to download the Dan's Papers app today!

2015 Dan's Papers Literary Prize for NonFiction Winning Entry

BY COLLETTE SEWAL

Outside, golden forsythias bloom and an early spring breeze carries a pungent stench of fresh mulch and fertilizer. The long bleak winter is now a fleeting memory. As the quiver of new life breaks forth, I am reminded it is time to tend to my garden and prepare the soil. I make plans to search my crowded garage for my red kneepad and favorite garden gloves—the ones with the pink plastic dots that remind me of old-fashioned rolls of candy on paper. Tomorrow, I promise myself.

Today, I am inside the local history room of the Mattituck-Laurel Library. I am harvesting the past. A musty vanilla scent hovers as I spread aging books, old newspaper clippings, vintage postcards and fading photographs across a large table. I am reading the stories of Love Lane, which was once an old Indian footpath. Hundreds of years ago, Native Americans would drag their canoes from the shores of James Creek to Mattituck Creek along this shortcut and then paddle out to the Sound.

In the 1700s, early Mattituck settlers blocked this path for sheep to graze. In 1844 when the railroad line was established, the old footpath was opened and named Railroad Avenue East. Young suitors would stroll or ride their horses and wagons along the old Indian shortcut and linger north of the tracks beside the shore of Mattituck Creek. Once the word spread that this was the spot for some good old-fashioned romance, the name was changed to Lovers Lane and later shortened to Love Lane.

In Queens, where I was raised, the favorite make-out spot was along Astoria Park, down by the river. Couples would park their old beat-up cars by the bridge. Of course, this was when car seats were not separated by consoles; they were long and luxurious, like sofas. Many an evening, however, the romantic festivities were interrupted by a blinding flashlight piercing through a foggy window. "Move along," a stern cop would say.

As I look at vintage photographs dated circa 1910, I find it hard to imagine such hormonal exuberance from these stern-faced, rigidly posed young adults. Then again, drunken wild selfies were not exactly the custom of those times. On a whim, I decide to play imaginary matchmaker. I study photos of employees of the Hudson Canning Factory, which was located down the block from Love Lane, next to the tracks. The gent I pick is wearing casual overalls and his eyes radiate the aura of a pre-James Dean rebel-archetype. In her photo, the young lady I choose is sporting a complicated Gibson puffy hairdo and a floor length checkered skirt. After a long day of cleaning squash and peeling tomatoes, they both deserve some fun. I picture an ink-black, star-clustered night as they ride a horse-drawn buggy to Mattituck Creek. He leans in close and whispers an inside work-related joke about their boss, or maybe something about canning. She laughs. The ice is broken and he folds his calloused hand over hers. They gaze at the eternal sky and listen to the echoes of the stars. They dream of their future. (This of course was before light pollution, when you could really see the stars.) Anyway, my work with them is done.

I discover some photos of old dance halls from those early 1900s. On Saturday nights, everyone could cut loose at either the second floor of the old library on Pike Street, or over at Reeve and Tuthill's Apollo Hall, on the northwest corner of Love Lane. I can almost hear the jubilant piano roll music. I envision the women lacing up their corsets, and the men trading their farming overalls for vests and derbies. At first, everyone is stiff and shy. They stand against the wall waiting. As soon as the music cranks, the gents stroll over and choose a partner. Wild legs kick and fly as they dance the Peabody—named after the man whose belly was so rotund, the only way he could hold onto his partner was to dance sideways.

As time moves along, we hit the roaring twenties. The music of (Continued on next page) the Charleston and the Varsity Drag ring out from $25 Victrolas and local bands. Corsets are flung out the window and long hairdos are chopped to bobs. During the day, boys in knickers and girls with smocked dresses and ribboned hair flock to Dick Cox's Ice Cream Parlor on Love Lane for a handful of jellybeans or gumdrops. On special occasions, they clutch their 15 cents, climb onto spinning fountain stools and wait for the white-aproned proprietor to ask, "What'll yours be?"

Maybe they choose a Buster Brown with chocolate ice cream and pineapple sherbet and caramel, or maybe a Bull Moose with marshmallow cream and froufrou wafers. Outside the wavy glass window, a traveling hurdy-gurdy man performs with his trained bear and dancing monkey. Brand new Buicks line the street, purchased from W.C. Grabie's. On the corner at the Octagon House, the Peconic Bay Impressionist Caroline Bell rents a room, and soon after, opens her blue-shuttered art studio off Love Lane and Sound Avenue.

I move forward to the next photo, dated 1935. Studebakers from Grabie's now line the street. As I stare at the details, the sepia photo comes alive; an orange sherbet sun rises and an early morning haze lifts. One by one, the shopkeepers arrive and the sleeping lane in the old photo awakens. Lights are switched on, windows are cleaned, counters are polished, and porches are swept. The proprietors of Reeve and Hall Meat Market, Barkers Drugs and Soda, and H.C. Bohack open their doors and are ready for another day.

Seasons come and go. Every day lived evolves into a story that melds into the collective history of that era. I head outside to present day Love Lane with my photocopies and books in hand. I stroll by the heart-shaped street sign and down the speckled brick-red sidewalks. I pass the new toy store located in the Octagon House—which was once a bookstore, which was once a coffee shop, which was once a boarding house where Caroline Bell painted, and so on. As I pass the stores of 2015, the afternoon sky casts a golden glow on the narrow lane. Shadows form through the marbled branches of the Sycamore trees, which twist and bend with time. The trees that line the street remember.

The ancient Celts believed that the dead do not live far away and remain attached to the places where they once lived and worked. Even Albert Einstein, who summered on Nassau Point in 1939, said, "Physicists believe the separation between past, present, and future is only an illusion."

After years of tending to a store, fragments of a proprietor's soul will always float within the old walls. The ghosts of shopkeepers-past still walk down Love Lane, and I am one of the ghosts. Even though I am still very much alive, my past is ghostlike. Whenever I reach the end of the street, my eyes always glance at the shop with the new sign. I never step inside. I know better. When the past and present collide in the physical world—like an ex-wife meeting the present wife—not much good usually comes of it.

My shop on Love Lane did not sell merchandise, like tinctures of iodine or sacks of flour. Nor did my previous store, which was located in a non-historic strip mall "up island." The pizzeria owner at that strip mall once said, "The deli guy and I looked inside your store. It's empty, yet people come to you. What do you sell—the invisible?"

Kahlil Gibran said, "Work is love made visible." I sold my love of dance at my "up island" store for 12 years. I then moved to the North Fork where I taught ballet, tap and jazz at my studio on the corner of Love Lane and Pike for the next 17 years. Before my business, the Love Lane building housed a video rental store and way before that in 1850, the old Gildersleeve's home and general store stood in its place. A vintage photo shows the hurdy-gurdy man's costumed monkey dancing in the same spot where my studio would come to be.

Four years ago, I passed the Mattituck studio on to new owners. The time had come for me to stand back and allow that invisible creative spirit I had loved and nurtured within those walls to move forward.

Even though the stores and owners change through the years, couples in love still stroll down the lane. In the evenings, when the ochre glow of the last store light dims and the street is empty, the buildings breathe and dream their memories.

Tonight, a warm breeze carries a distant song of ragtime from an old dance hall. I linger at the end of Love Lane until the last strain of music fades. 🐾

Southampton Hospital Partners with Caron Treatment

BY CHRISTIE LEIGH BABIRAD

It's the number one health problem in the United States now. Addiction to opiates, which are often prescribed by doctors for pain relief, has become a nationwide issue. It's a crisis that is hitting very close to home, with Suffolk County having more addicts than Brooklyn and the Bronx combined. Fortunately, two doctors are working to put an end to the rising death toll that's particularly impacting our young people.

Dr. Shawn Cannon, Director of Medical Education at Southampton Hospital, is partnering with Dr. Joseph Garbely, Medical Director at the Caron Treatment Centers in Wernersville, Pennsylvania to send a group of medical students and residents from Southampton Hospital to Caron Treatment Centers for the upcoming school year. These future doctors and medical professionals will develop an understanding of addiction and learn alternatives for treating pain. The need for education on this topic is acute.

"It's the number one cause of death among people between the ages of 15 and 34, yet when we query American medical students if they've had any education, the answer is no," says Dr. Cannon.

The Caron Treatment Centers are a leading nonprofit provider of residential addiction treatment, and Dr. Cannon has witnessed the great work these centers have provided for his patients. Now he wants to bring this knowledge home to Suffolk County.

Cannon explains that one of the primary forces behind the addiction crisis stems from medical training, where doctors were taught to make sure that no patient is in pain, not acknowledging the fact that pain can be subjective. "There was a time when we were taught that pain is the new vital sign, and so we had blood pressure, heart rate, respiratory rate, temperature and pain. It was mandated in us to treat pain." These instructions came at a time when many pharmaceutical companies were promoting what's referred to as the 5th vital sign, which led to an increased use of opiates to treat patients' pain. "At that time we were actually told that opiates were safe to treat pain."

Dr. Joseph Garbely, of the Caron Treatment Centers, further explains that in the past, doctors weren't able to understand the differences between chronic and acute pain. "We've constantly been writing scripts for pain relievers instead of figuring out how to deal with chronic pain differently, and that's something that's very important for Caron."

Advanced research at Caron has provided better understanding of different kinds of pain. "We have a chronic pain program at Caron, one of the few in the country. Our chronic pain program is nationally recognized. We don't use opiates here, and we've been very successful in getting people's pain under control and them off the dangerous medication they've been using," says Dr. Garbely.

Nineteen of Dr. Cannon's medical students and residents will study at the Caron Treatment Centers in the upcoming semester. "One of the things I believe in at the Caron Center is that they have a full bio-psychosocial approach, which addresses that addiction is not simply a medical problem. We have to deal with your mind, body and spirit, and that's not an easy process."

At the Caron Centers, the students and residents will learn about other options available for treating pain. "We teach them differently," explains Dr. Garbely, "and they come out with a sort of epiphany of 'I think I can do this—I can deal with pain differently,' which is great. They need to know that, otherwise they feel they're up against this insurmountable task."

Dr. Garbely calls Dr. Cannon a "visionary" for understanding the importance of training young doctors in strategies for curbing addiction. "He very much wants to be a part of the solution in the addiction epidemic," says Dr. Garbely.

Dr. Cannon's goal is to teach the residents and get them out to places where they can continue to learn. "I want to show them different procedures, different ways, and they can take out what's best for them, and what they think is best for their patients. They're the future of medicine, and this is clearly the number one health problem in the United States." Dr. Cannon explains, "The goal of the program is to empower medical professionals to understand the disease of addiction including signs, symptoms and co-occurring issues."

Complete Unknowns Rock HarborFest September 10

BY EVERETT SOMMERS

Bob Dylan has had a legendarily long and varied musical life. He's a shape shifter, changing looks and styles across the 56 years of his career—and in doing so often exasperating his die-hard fans—without any explanation. His constant evolution seems to bring him to the least likely places. In a recent surprising twist, Dylan has even taken to releasing CDs of his performances of sophisticated American standards of the '30s and '40s—you know, songs like “Young at Heart” and “All or Nothing At All,” songs that embody a tradition that might seem antithetical to the kind of bare-bones folk-based style Dylan started out with.

Local Dylan tribute band The Complete Unknowns embraces all of Dylan's music. In recent years, they've taken to focusing their individual shows on particular periods of Dylan's oeuvre. On September 10, the Complete Unknowns will return to Bay Street Theater in Sag Harbor, and this time they will be looking at Dylan's mid-'70s music.

“It's the Rolling Thunder years,” says Michael Weiskopf, the lead singer for the Complete Unknowns. The Rolling Thunder Revue was the name of Dylan's celebrated concert tour of 1975-76. “Dylan was at his peak as a performer and was willing to share the limelight with other people,” says Weiskopf, noting how Dylan shed his customary aloofness on stage and was uncharacteristically generous with his audiences and fellow performers. Dylan shared the stage with Joan Baez throughout the tour, and the tour's entourage included playwright Sam Shepherd, poet Allen Ginsberg and filmmaker Howard Aik. The Rolling Thunder Revue concerts featured revamped songs from Dylan's folk period as well as new songs from the vital records he was making at the time.

Exploring the mid-'70s gives the band a lot of great songs to choose from. “His studio work from the time is iconic,” says Randolph Hudson III, lead guitarist for the Complete Unknowns.

Indeed, Dylan's mid-'70s period saw the release of three solid albums after a series of relative disappointments. Planet Waves (1974), recorded with The Band, yielded “Forever Young,” an instant classic. The masterful Blood on the Tracks (1975) is considered by many to be the greatest achievement of Dylan's career, and is sometimes thought of as a comeback album even though Dylan hadn't gone anywhere—it's just that good. Blood on the Tracks features such gems as “Tangled Up in Blue,” “You're Gonna Make Me Lonesome When You Go,” “Simple Twist of Fate”—songs that recast Dylan as a confessional singer-songwriter of the first order, although he has strenuously denied any autobiographical allusions in the songs. Finally, 1976's Desire capped off this fruitful period, containing the cheerful “Mozambique,” the haunting “One More Cup of Coffee,” and the explosive “Hurricane,” a song protesting the controversial incarceration of the boxer Rubin “Hurricane” Carter.

“It's an interesting period,” says Hudson. “With ‘Hurricane,’ Dylan briefly revisited the Civil Rights struggle that he hadn't really touched in a while. At the same time, he was experimenting with a new theatricality.” Dylan had recruited Mick Ronson from David Bowie's band, which brought a taste of glam to the stage, and Dylan himself occasionally appeared on stage wearing white theatrical makeup.

Weiskopf is excited about recreating the energy of the Rolling Thunder Revue. “We're going to bring in some guests to sing and play, and Bay Street is a great place for this kind of music. The sound is great, and the audience is right there.” And while Weiskopf has the daunting job of memorizing all of those Dylan lyrics, everybody remembers the chorus to “Forever Young”—so sing along. 🎤

The Complete Unknowns at Bay Street Theater, September 10 at 8 PM. Tickets available at the theater, or call the box office at 631-725-9500 or visit baystreet.org.

2016 Bridgehampton Road Rally & Tour d'Hamptons

Long before Detroit or Indianapolis or Daytona, Bridgehampton was the home of an early U.S. motoring tradition that would come to enjoy a long and illustrious history. The races and industries on Long Island had a far-reaching impact on the development of American automobiles and the individuals who, for more than a century, have sat behind their wheels. In 2016, the Bridgehampton Museum and Dan's Papers will celebrate this storied history with an event that will reignite a passion and shine a light on a treasured piece of East End and American lore: the Bridgehampton Road Rally & Tour d'Hamptons, taking to the streets this October 1.

Between 1915 and 1921 the streets of Bridgehampton took on the sports cars of the time as they raced through wooded areas and past potato fields on dirt roads, kicking up dust in their wake. From 1949 until 1953, racing resumed as crowds of up to 50,000 people came from far and wide to watch cars race at speeds of up to 100 mph on public roads in and around Bridgehampton. When street racing was outlawed by New York State in 1953, the Bridgehampton Lions Club and racing supporters established the Bridgehampton Race Circuit just outside of Bridgehampton. On October 1, those same environs will welcome classic cars of these bygone eras and other autos of interest, now owned by collectors, as they cruise the Bridgehampton Road Rally course in a non-timed drive, making stops along the way to immerse themselves in the history surrounding them. Only automobiles manufactured prior to 1970 are eligible to enter the Rally (all entrants are subject to approval by the Bridgehampton Road Rally Committee), and the Rally is rain or shine.

Some owners of special automobiles simply wish to take their cars out for the day and have a nice drive in the company of like-minded enthusiasts in the perfect setting—a setting such as the Tour d'Hamptons. Open to Brass cars, antique cars, cars of interest, exotics, luxury vehicles—any automobile that exudes the spirit of the road in all its glory—the Tour d'Hamptons also takes place on October 1, navigating a different course than the Road Rally and lasting about 40 minutes, offering drivers a shorter but no less thrilling ride through historic Hamptons roads. (As with the Road Rally, the Tour d'Hamptons drive is rain or shine, and all entrants are subject to approval by the Tour d'Hamptons Committee.)

This year, there will also be plenty happening for car enthusiasts off the road on the grounds of the Bridgehampton Museum during the Bridgehampton Road Rally & Tour d'Hamptons. All are invited to come enjoy this gathering of vintage and prestigious cars and bring back the spirit of Bridgehampton racing from days gone by.

EVENT DAY OCTOBER 1, 2016

The Drivers Breakfast

As drivers, supporters and spectators arrive at the grounds of the Bridgehampton Museum, participant registration is held in the Rally Clubhouse inside the Museum's 19th-century Corwith House. Once registered, drivers, their guests and event sponsors enjoy the warm welcome of an elegant continental breakfast by Sonnier & Castle under the Main Tent, setting a festive tone for the day.

Bridgehampton Road Rally & Tour d'Hamptons Car Display

The beautiful line-up of cars that join the Bridgehampton Road Rally and Tour d'Hamptons do so not only to take on the course, but to be seen and savored by aficionados. Each entrant will be displayed in the staging area on the grounds of the Bridgehampton Museum prior to send-off, as drivers make final adjustments to their vehicles, swap secrets and savor the chance to show off their autos before hitting the road.

Upon crossing the finish line later in the day, each driver returns to the staging venue, where guests and participants alike can view and walk amidst the cars, mingle and share their mutual love of these special automobiles.

Road Rally Send-off

Drivers, start your engines! Cars will present on the Main Stage in front of adoring fans prior to setting off as the Master of Ceremonies provides details of each car's provenance. This year's Road Rally will include: a judged show (prizes to be awarded at the conclusion of the Rally); a parade around the 1949–1953 four-mile race loop before returning to the Corwith House grounds to line up for the start of the Rally; a historic trivia quest, with stops at historic sites along the route; and a special timed component.

The Rally Route will be approximately 60 miles and will include four stops to collect poker cards (the best hand upon everyone's return wins a special prize) and stops at the historic trivia sites. The route should take about three hours to complete. This year there will also be a prize for the car that returns back to the Bridgehampton Museum closest to the official projected Rally time, as pre-determined by the Rally Coordinator. Teams must obey all traffic regulations while making allowances for lunch, "pit stops," poker stops and trivia stops.

Tour d'Hamptons Send-off

Following the official Road Rally Send-off, cars participating in the inaugural Tour d'Hamptons will have their time in the spotlight. Motorists will drive their Tour car onto the Main Stage as the Master of Ceremonies shares the unique features of each auto with the audience. There will also be a judged show component to the Tour d'Hamptons, and spectators will be able to view the Tour d'Hamptons Send-off from underneath the Main Tent.

The Bridgehampton Road Rally & Tour d'Hamptons Invitational Showcase

The Hamptons' most prestigious automobile gathering! Staged on the scenic lawn of the Bridgehampton Museum, this is a curated display of exquisite automobiles for all to see, a rare opportunity to speak with the owners and experience the history of these remarkable machines. This singular gathering of vintage and unique cars is by invitation only.

Main Tent Events

While drivers are out motoring the streets of the Hamptons, the Main Tent at the Bridgehampton Museum will be a hub of activity for auto lovers—free and open to the public—featuring talks by automobile aficionados, book signings with writers from the world of cars, racing and Bridgehampton history, more world-class autos on display, and a specially curated exhibit on the History of Auto Racing in Bridgehampton—including rare artifacts and memorabilia from Bridgehampton's storied auto racing past.

Cocktail Reception and Awards Ceremony

Following an exhilarating afternoon on the road, drivers from the Road Rally and Tour d'Hamptons will be feted under the Main Tent at the Cocktail Reception and Awards Ceremony. This "Hamptons Tailgate-style" event will feature delectable passed hors d'oeuvres, and, of course, a toast featuring the Hamptons' favorite beverage—rosé. Awards will be given for cars and drivers in the Bridgehampton Road Rally, the Tour d'Hamptons and the Invitational Showcase, and the post-race celebration will conclude with the awarding of prizes in various categories.

Winner's Circle VIP Experience

A new level of experience this year in both the Bridgehampton Road Rally and Tour d'Hamptons is the Winner's Circle VIP Club. In addition to entry into either of these events for a driver and navigator, Winner's Circle VIPs—limited packages are available—receive an official event driving cap, limited edition event poster and VIP swag bag, and are invited to a private dinner where toasts will be raised and a world-class meal enjoyed while VIPs share stories of the road, enjoying the camaraderie of fellow drivers and noted guests from the day's Main Tent activities. It's the perfect one-of-kind cap to the uniquely Hamptons experience that is the Bridgehampton Road Rally & Tour d'Hamptons. 🍷

For more information on the Bridgehampton Road Rally & Tour d'Hamptons Presented by the Bridgehampton Museum and Dan's Papers, and to enter yourself as a driver, visit DansPapers.com/TourdHamptons or bridgehamptonhistoricalsociety.org. Event is rain or shine on Saturday, October 1.

This Week's Cover Artist: Lorraine Shemesh

BY STEPHANIE HOLMES

HONORING THE ARTIST

In this week's cover, artist Lorraine Shemesh has captured the distinct quality of light and water as can only be seen from underwater in a swimming pool. Going a step beyond, she has included a figure, arms outstretched, back bending and thigh curving upward as the body meets its reflection above. While not an unfamiliar image, the skill and understanding involved in capturing it nears the impossible. Shemesh lets us in on what's behind her painting and her process.

What first led you to create underwater, sometimes half-submerged, figurative paintings?

I was drawn to water as a subject because of its myriad patterns in constant flux. The process of developing various repeated patterns in order to create movement, rhythm and harmony, presented the possibility of a visual metamorphosis and allowed me to work figuratively and abstractly simultaneously. While my Painted Pool series was initially engaged in a dialogue involving the action above and below the water line, I gradually became more interested in the light refraction and the more abstract shapes that pulled off the figures as they floated.

How do you begin a new work?

There's a lot of drawing involved. Linear gesture drawings are completed to hone in on the composition. I hire professional dancers as models to strike the poses because of their physical flexibility and the fluidity of the shapes they generate. I establish the color shifts that occur on the flesh by shooting the models directly in the water. A considerable number of black and white drawings help to work out the striated light patterns, often while I'm working on the larger painting. It's a long and engrossing process that often takes several months.

When you taught art at RISD and Amherst, what did you encourage in your students?

All artists, regardless of their experience level, require two things: an idea and a way to put it down. The painting and drawing classes I taught at RISD and Amherst College focused structurally on a deep understanding of visual language, materials and process. Developing the ability to see was a result of direct observation and experimentation. I always encouraged my students to push through the challenge that creation presents in the service of finding their own voices.

Who are some of your favorite artists and/or recent gallery or museum exhibitions?

El Anatsui at The Met, Brooklyn Museum, and Jack Shainman Gallery, Lee Bontecou, and Martin Puryear at The Morgan, Matthew Marks Gallery, and The Smithsonian.

What draws you to the East End of Long Island?

I have returned many times to the East End of Long Island, spending brief periods in Sag Harbor, the Hamptons, Shelter Island and Amagansett, all of which have proven to be memorable. The generous proportion of land to sky is reason enough to keep me coming back!

Where can readers view your work?

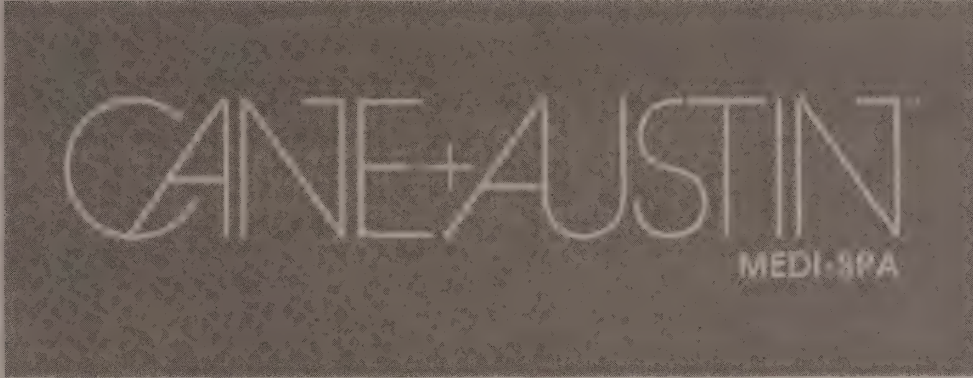

My work is currently represented by Gerald Peters Gallery. Upcoming group exhibits include "Philip Pearlstein: Legacy of Influence" in Princeton, NJ and Art Miami at the beginning of December.

My work is represented in the public collections of The Butler Institute of American Art, The Museum of the City of New York, The Museum of the Rhode Island School of Design, The Boise Art Museum, The DeCordova and Danforth Museums, and The National Academy Museum.

How I Spent My "Indian Summer"

BY SALLY FLYNN

What I call "Indian Summer" spans from August 1 until the steering wheel doesn't burn your hands. There are no holidays in August because it's just too darn hot to do anything. There are different performance standards for every activity. There's no sex, unless it's in front of an air conditioner and nobody has to move. The official excuse of Indian Summer, acceptable in any situation, is, "I can't. It's just too hot."

The Too Hot Defense, acknowledged by law: "Because, Your Honor, it was 98°, too hot, the humidity was 97%, I was up to my eyeballs in cramps and kids. We had to go off-island on a Friday, in a car without A/C, to replace a dead hamster. We had to go to three places to find a girl hamster. When we got back at 8:30 p.m. he was in his recliner, asking me what's for dinner. So, I grabbed the frying pan, intending to sauté a lovely vegetable medley and make a frittata with homemade salsa, when suddenly his head ran into the pan...Yes, Your Honor, yes he did, he ran into the pan six times. I was right there, I saw the whole thing."

It's hot—try to stay cool!

Having vacuumed our cars twice since summer began we are now resigned to let the beach sand stay there until autumn. You can identify those who will not be cleaning their cars until autumn by the line-up of new shells along the dashboard. In addition to shells, I have a crab on my dashboard. With his multi-directional eyes, he is my navi-crab, and if he sends me the wrong way, I can crush him with one blow.

All cute cheap sandals bought in June look like crap by August, but there's no point in buying new sandals now. We wear them no matter what they look like because it's too hot to care. In June I bought cute sandals with big daisies and sparkly stones in the center. One of my sparkly stones fell off, and my daisies are wilted.

In June we tell our teens, "I'm serious. You can't go off-island without checking with me first. It's not about control, it's about safety. If I didn't love you, I wouldn't care." In August we tell our teens, "I don't care, just be back here by Labor Day."

Summer cooking: cheap ice cream, iced tea, barbecue, premium ice cream.

Summer housekeeping: Unless someone contracts typhoid, the house is clean enough.

Summer make-up: Someone needs to invent make-up that will not melt off your face. Even waterproof makeup slides off. Until that is invented, it is acceptable to wear the largest sunglasses you can find, indoors and out, and lipstick.

Summer clothes: A cotton gauze tent is the only intelligent attire for the heat, but in lieu of that, you may wear as little clothing as possible, as long as you are clothing/age/weight proportionate. Please remember that some things don't mix. For instance: stretch marks and a belly ring, tube tops past a B cup, Speedos (unless you have an Olympic medal.)

I believe marriages improve greatly in summer. It's too hot to fight, too hot to pack and leave, too hot to divorce. I know spousal homicides increase in high heat, but overall, you leave your spouse alone, unless they're acting like an idiot, and it's 99° and the humidity is 98%.

"...and that's when I shot him, Your Honor...to put him out of his misery." 🐢

Starving in Southampton

BY STACY DERMONT

I just found a sesame seed on my desk and ate it.

Right now it's 2:34 p.m. in the Editorial department at Dan's Papers in Southampton.

Less than 2.5 hours to life on the open road. I skipped lunch because I had a doctor's appointment that ran long. That is, the wait for my appointment ran long. As an overweight member of the American middle class, I'm not allowed to say that

I'm "starving."

Most of my writing is about food—restaurant reviews, cookbook reviews, chef interviews, original recipes. I'm not a picky eater but I am rather particular. My favorite restaurants are few. In fact, my favorite place to be is my kitchen when I have the stovetop, the oven, the mixer and the dishwasher all running full-steam-ahead. I grow my own veggies, make my own beer and pickles, and home-can everything that I can get my hands on in season. It's a lot of work and it's completely worth it.

I don't want to overthink it. If only mice were tasty to humans...

but...my last everything bagel was consumed at my desk two weeks ago. I know that sesame seeds go bad but I figure that one can't go too bad, right? It's not exactly a vitamin pill but it is exactly the size of one of the smaller stones in my favorite diamond ring. Maybe a really, really bad sesame seed could kill a mouse, but I doubt it—I've seen some of the things mice eat—candles, mold. I also watched my father struggle to kill a mouse once back on our farm. I didn't watch directly, I stood behind him as he "wrenched the little sucker's guts out." Rats were easier to kill because he could stab them with a pitchfork, but I digress.

I ate a normal breakfast—"normal" for me: a slice of buttered toast; and a slice of toast with butter, peanut butter and jelly on it; and drank a cup of hot mint tea. Yes, it was "gourmet" peanut butter, ground by southern hippies; homemade jelly and my own dried mint, plus local honey for the tea, with a coin of fresh-cut North Fork ginger thrown in for vim. But that's quality, I'm thinkin' quantity now. I could drink two milkshakes, I could wolf down half a crappy pizza in the blink of an eye, I could eat a chopped salad the size of a dumpster...

It's hard to concentrate when you're hungry. Studies now prove that the "bad kids" in school are the hungry kids.

There were several meetings in our conference room today. Are there leftovers? Leftovers are deposited in our office's kitchenette several times a week—plastic platters of halved sandwiches and wraps catered by a local market. We call these second-hand feasts "sandwich days" at Dan's.

It's almost 3 p.m. now. What would a roasted vegetable wrap leftover from an 11 a.m. sales meeting look like? It would look like heaven. It would look like the one thing that could stop my stomach from digesting itself. At this point I'd eat yesterday's unrefrigerated guacamole.

Hopefully chewing this wad of gum will keep me alive long enough to grab a veggie burger at Burger King, on the road toward much better things.

Our Senior Editor Stacy Dermont has written over 500 restaurant reviews and articles for Dan's Papers. In addition to her weekly column and reviews for Dan's Papers, Stacy's writing has appeared in The New York Times, Fine Gardening and Avenue magazine. She is currently at work on a farm-to-table cookbook and is shopping her first novel, Merry Mary.

Mattituck Singer/Songwriter Miles East

BY CHRISTIE LEIGH BABIRAD

Singer and songwriter Miles East will perform at the North Fork Roasting Company in Southold on September 4, marking a turning point in his career as he shifts from being a drummer on national tours to pursuing a solo career. His sound is completely his own but has been compared to James Taylor, Duncan Sheik and Ray LaMontagne. East spoke with us about how the North Fork of Long Island inspires him, his new album Ghosts of Hope and why right now is the most memorable time in his career thus far.

What was the creative process for Ghosts of Hope like for you?

I'm very lucky to have the kind of producer that I have. Blake Morgan. He's one of the few producers left in the industry who really cares about what you're trying to say, and how you're trying to say it as the artist, so that when people see you, and hear you, they know exactly who you are, and they know exactly what you're about.

This record is a milestone for me. I've been in the music business going on nearly two decades now—both as a studio musician, and as a drummer and also as a singer/songwriter. But professionally, the drumming has taken the front seat, and the singer/songwriter has been in the backseat. And now I've played on over two-dozen albums for various artists, and been on national tours as a drummer, and this marks the switcheroo. And it's not a brief thing either. This is the permanent switch now. I'm in the driver's seat as the singer/songwriter.

What inspires you?

This record is a milestone for me.
I've been in the music business going on nearly two decades...
This is a permanent switch.

My muse is being anywhere near salt water. As far as the subject matter of my songs—every artist paints themselves. But my process is generally more retrospective than introspective. I can't write songs about things I'm going through at the time. Sometimes I don't get around to writing about something in my life until five or 10 years after, because I want to come to a perspective that has more depth to it. There are only two songs I've ever written where I was writing about what I was going through at the time. One of the songs is on Ghosts of Hope, and it's called "The Hard Part." It was what I was going through. It was clear that it was dire. There was no ambiguity about it. I knew where I was, and I had to get out of there and go somewhere else. I knew where I needed to be, so the chorus of that song is kind of like the version of me in that place telling the present me, "Don't worry, I'm here waiting for you when you get around to getting here."

You were quoted saying "A lot of people tend to see their lives in terms of journeys, but I've always seen mine in terms of destinations—emotionally, romantically, musically." Can you elaborate on your outlook on life, and how it's reflected in your lyrics?

That's really what "The Hard Part" is all about. Here I am in a place I've got to get out of, and I know where I need to be. My life has always been more about the locations. It's always about where I'm trying to get to next, and what locations—whether they be actual locations, or in the mind, or a state of being.

Come hear Miles East at North Fork Roasting Company in Southold on September 4.

What have been some of the most memorable moments in your career?

There's been many, but I'm going to have to say that this right now is my most memorable moment—making this record and actually having it come to fruition pretty much trumps everything else I've experienced up to this point.

How does your drumming background influence your songwriting and singing?

It's actually kind of the opposite. I attribute my success as a drummer to the fact that I've always been a singer/songwriter, because I approach the drums as a singer/songwriter. So in my mind, the drums have to serve the song no differently than the guitar part has to serve the song, that the lyrics have to serve the song, for that matter. I can't imagine doing it any other way.

You live in Mattituck. What do you love about the East End of Long Island, and how has this landscape influenced your music?

It's everything. It's the air. It's the breeze. There's a phrase in my wife's family, which is "It's a perfect Mattituck day." And it doesn't matter that it could be the same weather 30 miles west—it's not the same thing as being out there. It's the combination of the salt air, the light, the topography—it's deep. It's not like the Caribbean where it's almost too postcard-like, it's too escapist. But that's not what it's like out there. You can go out to the North Fork and think about serious stuff. I feel a strong connection, and it's what I've had a strong connection to all my life—it's my muse—the salt water, it just makes me tick as an artist.

Miles East will be performing at the North Fork Roasting Company, 55795 Main Road in Southold, on Sunday, September 4 from 9 to 11 a.m. for a free show. For more information visit nofororoastingco.com or call 631-876-5450. More information on Miles East can be found at mileseast.com.

Do the Time Warp at Gateway's "Rocky Horror Show"!

BY GENEVIEVE HORSBURGH

The Gateway Playhouse concludes its 2016 season with a show so spectacular it's obvious why it has such a devoted following. Directed by Keith Andrews, The Rocky Horror Show is a phenomenon that you cannot miss. If you've never seen it, you should—and if you have seen it, Gateway's production will not disappoint!

From the moment the show begins, you're more than just a spectator along for the ride. It's the kind of performance that may take a minute for you to wrap your head around, but once you get it, you won't want to let the feeling go. The story takes hold of your sense, captures your mind and, before long, you, too, will be doing the Time Warp again and again.

The gyrating, flamboyant and sexy spectacle that is The Rocky Horror Show wastes no time getting to the crux of the story. The Narrator (charismatic Geoffrey Owns) takes us on this bizarre journey that follows Brad and Janet (Harley Jay and Emily Behny, respectively), a newly engaged couple on their way home from their friends' wedding. Brad and Janet end up driving through a nasty rainstorm when their car gets a flat tire. The two set off through the downpour in search of shelter and come across a castle. There's a lot of tongue-in-cheek humor that will make you giggle—bang those knockers, Brad—and some that will make you laugh out loud.

Brad and Janet are greeted at the castle doors by Riff-Raff (Courter Simmons), an odd character with a hunchback. He and his equally strange sister, Magenta (Lisa Karlin), perform one of the show's most iconic numbers, "The Time Warp," along with the castle's other guests who've gathered. The scene is delightful and contagious—all you want to do is get up and dance.

The moment you lay your eyes on Dr. Frank-N-Furter you are captivated. Matthew LaBanca, as the pansexual Frank-N-Furter, is utterly amazing—compelling in every way—and he can pull off those platform heels and skimpy outfits while embodying the eccentric "Sweet Transvestite" from Transsexual, Transylvania, perfectly. He channels Tim Curry's iconic portrayal of the doctor, and with a strong voice to match.

The entire show is an homage to classic science fiction and, in keeping with that theme, Dr. Frank-N-Furter has created a man by some nefarious means. It just so happens that the night Brad and Janet appear at the castle is the night the doctor is to bring his creation to life. Rocky Horror, played by the talented and toned Josh Canfield, is not as submissive as perhaps the doctor was hoping. Canfield belts out a fantastic rendition of "I Can Make You a Man" and we fall deeper under his spell. By now, the straight-laced Brad and Janet are fully freaked out. As the night continues they're thrust into separate rooms and both are seduced by Frank-N-Furter in disguise.

The absurdities of the events that follow make for a memorable performance put on by a stellar cast that plays the characters straight. If the show itself is ridiculous, why push it over the top with hammy acting? In the capable hands of the lead actors, Rocky Horror is not only entertaining, it's an immersive, believable experience. It's easy to see why this story, in all its iterations, has had such an impressive and loyal following since it first premiered in 1973. From beginning to end, The Rocky Horror Show has you under its spell.

Matthew LaBanca (Frank-N-Furter), Josh Canfield (Rocky), Lisa Karlin (Magenta) and Mychal Phillips (Columbia).

The Rocky Horror Show is playing at the Gateway Playhouse through September 10, with a special midnight performance on September 9. For tickets and information visit gatewayplayhouse.com

Sales, Sass and Summer Send-Offs

BY VALERIE SAN FILIPPO

This week, the artists and artisans take the stage. The East End shopping scene comes alive with beautiful, one-of-a-kind pieces. From art festivals to the Hamptons Classic to the Shinnecock Pow Wow, it's a weekend like no other. Head out there and enjoy the amazing culture the area has to offer, and maybe snag some brag-worthy goodies along the way.

The Hamptons Classic is wrapping up this weekend, but you can keep the spirit alive with a new Hampton Classic jewelry collection by Jet Set Candy. The exclusive gold horse charm necklace is available only at the Hampton Classic pop-up shop in the Boutique Garden. Check out this charm, and other pieces in their collection, while taking in the sights this weekend. Jet Set has also created a line of Hamptons-inspired pendants, so you can take the charm of the Hamptons with you wherever you go. The collection includes gold windmills, clamshells and Montauk-engraved surfboards, available in sterling silver, 14k gold vermeil and solid 14k gold. Jet Set Candy is available at jetsetcandy.com.

This weekend, the Shinnecock Indian Nation presents their 70th annual Pow Wow, beginning

Friday, September 2, and continuing through September 5. Join in the celebrations, and while you're there check out art and craft vendors from across the Americas. View demonstrations and learn the stories of the artists and artisans who have traveled from near and far for a chance to take part in one of the largest Native American gatherings on the East Coast. Admission is $15 for adults, $10 for children, seniors and veterans. Visit shinnecockindianpowwow.com to find out more.

Gym Source, the one stop shop for home gym equipment, is having a massive Labor Day sale. Beginning September 2 and ending September 5, the sale will include treadmills, ellipticals, home gyms, free weights and gym accessories. Find Gym Source at 23 Windmill Lane in Southampton, or visit gymsource.com/laborday

This weekend, the Good Ground Artists will be displaying and selling their original artwork and matted prints. The group is made up of 35 community artists dedicated to the arts of the East End. The show will take place at 2 Cornell Place in Hampton Bays on September 2 and 3 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Visit goodgroundartists.com to learn more.

On September 3 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. stop by Bridgehampton Presbyterian Church, 2429 Montauk Highway in Bridgehampton, for a juried fine art and craft show featuring the work of local artists. Woodwork, paintings, jewelry, photography and clothing are available for purchase. Visit southforkcrafts.com to find out more.

September 3 and 4 the Great Lawn is Westhampton

Beach comes alive the 8th annual Westhampton Beach Festival of the Arts, with an outdoor gallery of art. View glass, ceramics, metalwork and woodwork, as well as jewelry, paintings and textile works made by artists and artisans from across the United States. The festival will remain open until 6 p.m. each day. Find it at 35 Main Street in Westhampton Beach. 🏖️

Break the Mold with Mildew Busters!

BY CHRISTIE LEIGH BABIRAD

Mildew, mold and grime can certainly make your home appear lackluster, to say the least. Luckily, we have just the thing to help keep your home as pristine as can be. Mildew Busters, a family-operated business owned by Bill Smith and his sons, are pros at cleaning and restoring siding, roofing and outdoor furniture to their natural colors. Long-running Dan's Best of the Best winners, Mildew Busters has all the services you need put the luster back into your home.

Mildew, which is the early stage of mold, grows on just about anything—all different kinds of wood, tile and other organic materials—and can begin to sprout on a damp surface within 24 to 48 hours. Consistent cleaning is imperative for the upkeep of your home.

"Mildew, mold, salt, dirt and other contaminants degrades the wood and end up costing the homeowner much more money in repairs or replacement than if they'd simply washed and sealed the wood properly," explains Smith.

For more than 30 years, Mildew Busters has put the customers' needs first, which is why they developed a technique called "soft washing." Unlike power washing, soft washing uses low pressure and guarantees that nothing will be damaged in the process. "We don't power wash surfaces. We use a soft wash technique that we developed that uses low pressure and wide-degree tips. This eliminates any possibility of damaging the wood during the cleaning process, which often occurs with inexperienced power washers," says Smith. Mildew Busters is also the first company on the East End to develop a non-toxic citrus mildicide, which, when applied before washing, eliminated mildew and mold spores. The product is pet-safe and isn't harmful to plants.

Mildew Busters has been a top choice for thousands of homeowners and businesses on the North and South Forks. Their services include house washing, pressure washing, waterproofing and refinishing siding, decks, railings and roofs. For the past seven years they've won Dan's Best of the Best. "It's an extraordinary achievement, and to have our customers vote for us each year is very gratifying. It makes what we do so much more worthwhile," says Smith. "We're also the first company to be honored for Dan's Hall of Fame. They

GIVE YOUR CHILD A HEALTHY SMILE

Many parents don't realize how early dental problems can occur, or just how important those "baby teeth" are!

Prolonged and frequent bottle or breast feeding can cause baby bottle tooth decay. Diets high in sugar from fruit roll-ups, sticky candies, juice and soda can also cause lots of cavities. Thumb and pacifier habits can cause malformations of the palate.

Children are not done losing their baby teeth until they are 12-13 years old! These teeth hold the spaces for permanent teeth, shape your child's face, and help with speech, eating and chewing.

Dr. Nancy Cosenza specializes in dentistry for children from infancy to their teenage years. At Hampton Pediatric Dental Associates, we know that not only children, but their teeth, are entirely different from adults. In fact, pediatric dentists require 2 years' additional training and education beyond dental school!

(There are only 5,000 pediatric dentists in the U.S. and we're the only pediatric dental practice in the Hamptons!)

Our office is colorfully painted and cheerfully designed a definite "kid-friendly" environment. Our staff is genuinely warm and cheerful too!

Call us at (631) 287-8687 if you have any questions or would like to arrange an appointment.

Remember that good dental habits and experiences started in childhood will last a lifetime! We know how to make kids leave the dentist's chair smiling -- and their parents, too!

The Spirits of This Summer Past?

BY JORDAN GREEN

Restaurants and liquor stores boast famous spirits from all over the world, but some of the best stuff on earth is locally inspired and distilled right here on the East End. Whether you prefer rum, whiskey, gin, or vodka, it's likely that there's a local brand to fulfill your desires. It doesn't matter if you're looking for a nice drink on the beach or at the bar, these East End spirits are perfect to enjoy all year long!

Long Island Spirits is the lone craft distillery on Long Island. Located in Baiting Hollow, the operation is a unique farm-to-bottle, hand-crafted distillery that is surrounded by 5,000 acres of potato farms. In addition to their own brand, LiV Vodka, Long Island Spirits also distills four other brands' liquor: Pine Barrens, Deepwells, Rough Rider and Sorbetta.

LiV Vodka (80 proof) is Long Island Spirits' brand name vodka. Made using local Marcy russet potatoes, LiV has a distinctive vanilla nose with a creamy texture. The Ristretto Espresso Vodka (80 proof) is made by blending LiV with natural barista selected espresso. It creates a bold dark chocolate taste with the warm decadence of coffee.

For gin and whiskey connoisseurs, Pine Barrens has an American Single Malt Whiskey and a Barrel Reserve Botanical Dry Gin. The 94-proof gin, with hints of zesty tangerine and lemon meringue, uses water from the glacial aquifer buried deep below the Long Island Pine Barrens. The 95 proof spicy, velvet smooth American Single Malt Whiskey is the first of its kind to be distilled on Long Island. The whiskey has faint notes of nutmeg, cinnamon, and caramel. Try Pine Barrens' Cherrywood Smoked Malt whisky for a sweet aroma and smoky taste.

Another LI Spirit product is Deepwells Botanical Dry Gin. Made with locally harvested White Round Marcy potatoes, this 94 proof Botanical Dry Gin is infused with 28 fruits and botanicals.

Rough Rider Whisky and Bourbon are further spirit offerings from the folks at LI Spirits. The Happy Warrior Cask Strength Bourbon is hand bottled straight from the cask at 114 proof and then packaged into six-bottle cases. Rough Rider Straight Bourbon Whisky (90 proof) is aged bourbon with hints of fresh juice, blackberry and currant, along with caramel and burnt sugar. The Bull Moose Three Barrel Rye Whisky (90 proof) is distilled with a unique three barrel aging method, providing fruity sweetness on the nose with spice on the palate. The Big Stick is Rough Riders' strongest rye at 121 proof. It is made from locally harvested winter rye and blends spice and malty sweetness.

Long Island Spirits' Sorbetta line offers the first gluten-free, potato-based liqueurs to be available in the United States. The fresh taste of these liqueurs comes from hand peeled and macerated fresh fruits mixed with Ultra Premium LiV Vodka, which is used as the base. The line includes five flavors—lemon, Inspired by tales of rum runners burying barrels of the liquor in the Montauk dunes during prohibition, the family-owned and operated Hampton Rum Company set out to bring rum back to Montauk. Their American made Montauk Rum comes in four varieties. SunBurn, a 70 proof cinnamon-flavored rum, is a warm and tangy treat for the tongue and taste buds, and is a great complement to a day at the beach. Bellamy spiced rum (70 proof) is named for the English pirate "Black Sam" Bellamy, the richest pirate in history. This rum is infused with Caribbean flavors. Silver Siren white rum (80 proof) is clear and delivers a clean flavor perfect for mixing or sipping. For those who prefer their drinks straight, there is Black Sail aged rum (80 proof), which has more character and flavor than its mixing counterpart. Montauk Rum is available at Montauk staples like Gurney's, The Sloppy Tuna and Dock's Bar and Grill, as well as at various liquor stores. For more information, check out hamptonrum.com.

Montauk Rumrunners is family owned and operated in Montauk by descendants of the family who operated The Roadside Restaurant in old Montauk during Prohibition. Their Coconut Flavored Rum (60 proof) has a touch of sweetness with an exceptionally smooth finish. It can be enjoyed over ice, with cola, or can be blended with bananas for a tropical drink. The 80 proof Honey Flavored Whiskey is hand crafted with real honey to produce a smooth flavor that's not too strong and not too sweet. Rumrunner Citrus Flavored Gin has a refreshing taste of citrus and juniper that goes well with tonic or cranberry juice. Go to montaukrumrunners.com for more details and to find locations that sell Rumrunners liquor near you.

Handcrafted on the East End, Sag Harbor Rum (80 proof) has a distinctive taste that results from infusions of spices, fruits, and natural flavors. It's an unusually smooth "sipping rum" for drinking neat, on the rocks, or in cocktails. This rum is widely available in East End restaurants, such as Il Capuccino in Sag Harbor and Bay Kitchen & Bar in East Hampton. Head to sagharborm.com for to find out where you can get your own bottle.

New to the market is Wölffer Gin, now available at the celebrated Wölffer Estate Vineyard in Sagaponack. Distilled onsite from Wölffer's own rosé wine, this unique gin is flavored with juniper berries harvested from bushes right in front of the winery. After distilling and flavoring, an extract of grape skins is added to give the gin a pink tinge. Visit wolffer.com for more information.

Available in the Hamptons and on the North Fork, Keith's Nervous Breakdown Ultra Premium Margarita Mix is made in small batches with fruit sourced from the finest local growers. Keith's mix is sweetened with a touch of agave nectar rather than with high fructose corn syrup, which is used by most other brands. Sold at the Golden Pear Café's many locations, Keith's Nervous Breakdown has a unique Pomegranate Cranberry flavor that creates an extraordinary taste experience. Visit nervousbreakdown.com to discover where you can get Keith's mix to make your own margarita, or for where you can order it at bar or restaurant.

Dining at Dockers Waterside in East Quogue

BY STACY DERMONT

On the way to Dockers Waterside from Dan's Papers Southampton offices, our party of two got stuck in traffic behind an accident near the college. My husband and I do not carry cell phones so we couldn't call ahead. When we finally reached Dockers for our first meal there, we were greeted by a spectacular view of verdant marshland—a picture-perfect landscape of sea and sky. I grabbed my camera and discovered it was broken.

We were seated at a table on the main deck and very soon our server Nicole made everything better by bringing me a Blood Orange Margarita. She'd rightly recommended this mix of Milagro Silver Tequila, Solerno Blood Orange Liqueur, Aranciata Rossa Sparkling Blood Orange and agave. That salt along the rim was just what I needed!

Husband enjoyed a glass of Montauk Brewing Company's Summer Ale as we perused the menus. Dockers offers a select group of local wines from Palmer, Paumanok, Sparkling Pointe and Wölffer. A sort of "Long Island Wine Country Greatest Hits."

I was told after our evening at Dockers that they were understaffed that night. We had no idea. This very large operation seems to run like one tight ship. The service was friendly and fast, but not rushed. And the staff is in contention for best-looking wait staff. (I observed this before I started drinking.)

In addition to loads of surf and turf, the menu promotes Dockers shirts and hoodies—so you can fit right in. I noted that white jeans seemed to be de rigueur for staff and deck diners alike. The patrons along the main bar were more inclined toward khakis.

I knew I was supposed to order a big, steamy lobster to get the full experience of the place but I was only sorta in a lobster mood—so I ordered the Lobster Bisque to start and I was glad that I did: it was creamy smoothness with bites of succulent lobster, garnished with chopped scallion greens. The diminutive popover served alongside the soup bowl was perfect for this large customer—I snapped it in half and filled the halves with delish bisque! Husband was quite pleased with his sizeable appetizer of Cabernet-Braised Short Ribs.

I was in the mood for big, luscious sea scallops over couscous pearls in au jus with leeks and blackened asparagus—so the Pan-Seared Sea Scallops entrée really hit the spot. That underlying bacon-y flavor was to die for! I might order this every time I visit Dockers. I said aloud, "Whenever I'm impressed, it's always a pleasant surprise."

Husband ordered the Day Boat Catch. On that evening it was Pan-Seared Striped Bass prepared very simply and served over potato gnocchi and topped with colorful micro greens.

Did we have room for dessert? Yes, slash, no. We settled on sharing a Death by Lemon, though a nearby couple sharing a Huge Chocolate Cake made that dish look quite appealing. Our dessert turned out to be a sort of deconstruction, or restructuring, of a lemon meringue pie—it was a small meringue tart and scoops of lemon sorbet sporting rings of lemon peel. We killed, annihilated and clobbered it. Husband commented, "I like it better than lemon meringue pie because it's refreshing."

Watch for this sign!

The whole experience of Dockers Waterside is refreshing. It's only natural that it has become a popular institution. We visited on a busy Thursday night to enjoy the atmosphere of the setting, the food, the staff, the lively conversation and live music. What more could you ask for? 🍷

Zum Schneider on The End

BY EMILY SMITH GILBERT

For something different and delicious, go to Zum Schneider. Located in the heart of Montauk, this German restaurant and beer garden is an idyllic piece of Bavarian heaven right by the beach.

The interior is decorated in warm wood tones with lots of German beer paraphernalia adorning the walls—also, a stuffed deer head that lends a certain “Old World” feel to the place, as does “Rosi,” a ship’s figurehead (only in this case she’s clutching a ceiling-supporting column). Rafters are painted the white and blue of the Bavarian flag—much of the food is specific to the Bavarian state in the southeastern part of Germany—as is the back of the elevated stage, where live music happens on the weekends, including performances by the house oom-pah band Moesi Franzi and the JajaJas.

Almost all of the tables can accommodate at least six people, if not more, which contributes to the welcoming feel of the space. Large, garage-type doors open up to the outside, where there are several picnic tables beneath shaded umbrellas.

Balance the heat of the summer evening with a cool beer in one of three sizes: small, regular and large. Be warned: the large is very much so. There are 12 brews on draught—all of them German. For $50 you can order a “Sample Kranz” and try 11 of them (7 oz. each). Not a bad deal. The Weißenstephaner Weissbier has floral notes and hints of berries and banana. The Jever Pilsner, a “clear, dry and bitter north German pilsner,” is extremely drinkable, as is the Traunsteiner 1612er Zwickel, which manager Sebastian recommended, saying “It has lots of vitamins.” Vitamins or no, it was delicious! Wine, liquor and soft drinks are also available, but honestly, why would you?

Crisp and light potato pancakes (reiberdatschi)

Ease into your meal by beginning with some vorspeisen and schmanferl (appetizers and delicacies). There’s the standard, but ever-excellent, brezn (freshly baked Bavarian soft pretzel), which comes with tangy, spicy mustard. Branch out and order the o’batzda, a traditional Bavarian cheese spread made by mixing beer, blue cheese, brie and butter together. It’s topped with thinly-sliced onions and served with garnishes of radishes and pickles.

Absolutely get the reiberdatschi: crisp potato pancakes served with a side of applesauce and a small salad of lettuce and tomatoes. Your mother’s latkes? These are better! (Sorry Mom.)

Also try the radi, a thinly sliced white radish (think daikon) accompanied by sliced Swiss cheese and pickles. The radish is cool and light—a perfect bite for when the temperature rises. And, perhaps this is self-evident to anyone familiar with German food, but whatever beer you order pairs faultlessly with the savory and often slightly-bitter-in-a-good-way dishes.

sauce. But truly, Zum Schneider is a meat-lovers' paradise. There's the Schweinbraten (roasted pork shoulder), Sauerbraten (marinated beef), Rinderrückensteak mit Kräutbutter (rumpsteak with herb butter, roasted potatoes and bacon-wrapped green beans) and the Wiener Schnitzel (breaded pork loin). The portions, as you might expect, are hardy—but the staff will obligingly box up any leftovers. "It's a good midnight snack," Sebastian says of the Grosse Wurstplatte.

Finally, it's time for dessert. Have a cup of coffee. Take a breather. Regain your composure after that sumptuous feast you just devoured. But do not miss out on Apfe-radl (battered apple slices tossed in cinnamon with vanilla ice cream) or Heisse Liebe (hot, fresh raspberries over vanilla ice cream). The apples are so tender and buttery and coated in the flavor of brown sugar that they're basically the fruit equivalent of caramel. The raspberries for the Heisse Liebe are served in a small pitcher and you can pour as much or as little of the syrup as you like over the scoops of vanilla ice cream.

Finally, if you're able, slide down off your chair and roll yourself out the door of Zum Schneider's. Don't be sad: by the time you leave, you'll already be eagerly planning your next visit. Yes, it is that good. 🍷

Zum Schneider is open seven days a week for dinner, and for brunch and dinner on Saturday and Sunday. 4 South Elmwood Avenue, Montauk. 631-238-5963 zumschneider.com

The Grosse Wurstplatte of sausages and German mashed potatoes is complemented by a refreshing Traunsteiner 1612er Zwickel.

For mains, do yourself a favor and get the Grosse Wurstplatte: one each of weiner (the best hot dog you'll ever eat), weisswurst (traditional Bavarian white sausage made with veal), smoked beefwurst and bratwurst (made with pork), and two Nürnberg sausages (specialties of the city of Nuremberg, these small sausages are full of rich, herby, meaty flavor), all served with meltingly good sauerkraut and German potato salad.

Another traditional favorite, the Käsespätzle, can be ordered with or without bacon. It comes with caramelized onions and a house salad. Spätzle are a kind of soft egg noodle common to Germany and central Europe, and for Käsespätzle these noodles are mixed with cheese to create a "German mac 'n' cheese," Sebastian says.

In homage to the restaurant's proximity to the Atlantic, the menu also offers pan-seared local scallops, the catch of the day and beer-battered fish filets with homemade french fries and tartar

Top 5 East End Homes on the Market

BY OLIVER PETERSON

As summer winds down, it's the time to revisit some of the most stunning East End listings available. These impeccable homes have previously been featured on our Real Estate Top 5 lists, and with their impressive construction, it's easy to see why.

1860 Meadow Lane, Southampton $27,000,000

A highlight from our Top 5 Southampton Homes for Sale with Epic Pools, this oceanfront contemporary boasts 360-degree views of the ocean and bay on 5 acres. The property has a tennis court, outdoor barbecue and extensive decking. The 4-bedroom, 6-bath house features a sunken living room with fireplace. An epic, 40- by 20-foot indoor pool has a pool house and sauna. Sotheby's International Realty

1285 Flying Point Road, Water Mill $25,000,000

Perched atop a dune in Water Mill, this ultra-modern 4-bedroom, 4-bath stunner from June's Top 5 Unforgettable Hamptons Homes for Sale is a standout for its powerful architecture and extraordinary ocean and Mecox Bay views on 1.5 acres. Floor-to-ceiling glass walls retract into the floor. The house has a gourmet kitchen, living and dining room with fireplace and pool with pool house. No luxury has been spared in its 3,592 square feet of living space—all protected by a steel bulkhead. Douglas Elliman Real Estate

Greek Revival/Italianate in Sag Harbor $21,000,000

Built in 1833, this large Greek Revival style home from our Top 5 Hamptons Estates with Old-World Flair was enlarged in 1850 in the Italianate style. Modern amenities balance with original details in the 10,000-square-foot, 7-bedroom residence on more than an acre with 4 levels of living space. The house has a lovely pool and gardens, and a widow's walk, 4-bay garage and art studio. Brown Harris Stevens

64 West End Road, East Hampton $13,500,000

One of the Top 5 Hamptons Homes for Sale with Excellent Outdoor Entertaining, this gem offers privacy and sunset views of Georgica Pond. Tucked into its own cove, the house has 4 bedrooms and 4.5 baths on 2.7 desirable acres. Eat lunch by the pool and access the beach by a deeded path. Inside, enjoy the home's large turret room, or relax by the beachstone fireplaces. Douglas Elliman Real Estate

529 1st Street, Greenport $729,000

A standout from our Top 5 Victorian Homes for Sale on the East End, this classic 1874 Greenport Grand Dame is hard to miss with its bright blue siding, red door, slate fish-scale shingles, and white bargeboard and bracket trim. The 3-bedroom, 1.5-bath home has 2,044 square feet of living space on 2 acres. Inside, it features plaster crown molding, 12-foot original ceilings and gorgeous detailing throughout, including a curved staircase and ornamental fireplace. Century 21 Albertson Realty

Luxury epitomized at Miami property

Jade Signature rises with world-class architecture and picturesque views

Sunny Isles Beach is a quiet enclave in Miami known for its upscale community and laid-back beach atmosphere. Among the city's towering skyline is Jade Signature, a rising development that stands out for its elegant architecture. Designed by Herzog & de Meuron, the building is the firm's only residential oceanfront property in the U.S. The Prizker Prize award-winning firm is recognizable to savvy New Yorkers because it has delivered projects like The Parrish Art Museum, 56 Leonard St., and 40 Bond.

Capitalizing on Jade Signature's oceanfront location, Herzog & de Meuron designed the common areas to be on the ground level. The architect achieved a seamless flow from street to shore by designating three levels of parking space to be built underground. As a result, residents are connected to the beach, pool and thoughtfully placed amenities right when they arrive to the property. Jade Signature's architecture is only rivaled by the high caliber of its interiors, curated by renowned Parisian interior design firm PYR led by "the master of grande luxe," Pierre-Yves Rochon.

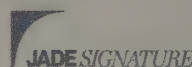

"We had a clear vision to create something that the residential market has never seen before, so we sought out the most talented people in the realm of architecture and design. This collaboration between Herzog & de Meuron and Pierre-

We had a clear vision to create something that the residential market has never seen before...

Yves Rochon has resulted in the perfect example of beach living," said Edgardo Defortuna, President and Founder of Fortune International Group. The development group is known for bringing the best talent to each project, an approach that has resulted in a number of high-profile buildings that have diversified the Miami skyline.

The lifestyle at Jade Signature is refined, elegant and exclusive. While it boasts resort-like amenities, the property will only have a residential component, being home to 192 lucky buyers. Each residence will enjoy direct ocean views, but the six sky villas and two penthouses are the crown jewels of the tower. The sky villas feature expansive terraces and 20-foot double-height ceilings in living areas, and the penthouses offer over-the-top amenities including private gyms, plunge pools and outdoor living areas starting at 5,242 square feet.
